

UNIVERSITY of NORTH TEXAS

Department of Philosophy and Religion Studies

and

Environmental Science

INSTITUTE of APPLIED SCIENCES
Department of Biological Sciences

present

Gary Nabhan
& Tony Norris

Friday, March 12 at 3:00 p.m. in EESAT 130

Gary Paul Nabhan, Ph.D. is a literary naturalist, ethnobiologist and sustainable agriculture activist who serves as Director of the Center for Sustainable Environments. His work in biocultural conservation and environmental literature has been honored with the John Burroughs Medal for Nature Writing, a MacArthur Foundation "genius" award, a Lannan Literary Fellowship and a Lifetime Achievement award from the Society for Conservation Biology. He is author of 18 books, including this year's releases of Cross Pollinations: the Marriage of Science and Poetry, and Tequila! A Cultural and Natural History. He raises Navajo-Churro sheep, heirloom turkeys and native crops near Winona, Arizona.

Tony Norris is a storyteller, singer, and rural folklife scholar who serves as Folklorist in Residence at Northern Arizona University's Center for Sustainable Environments. Tony has made field recordings and other documentation of folklife in the Appalachia, Texas and the Intermountain West. He is a regular performer, MC and participant in the National Cowboy Poetry Gathering and other, similar regional events. His Letters from Home series of CDs celebrates Western history and rural culture through story and song. He lives in Doney Park near Flagstaff, Arizona.

The lecture is free and open to the public.

For special accommodation, contact us at 565-2266 or philosophy@unt.edu.

Storytelling in

Openlands Protection
and
Local Food Systems

12:00 to 1:30 p.m. in EESAT 320A: Discussion with Gary Nabhan: "Coming Home to Eat: Creating More Sustainable Communities." Brown bag lunches are welcome.

4:15 to 5:15 p.m. in EESAT lobby: Book signing with Gary Nabhan and CD sales with Tony Norris.

Sponsored by the Department of Philosophy and Religion Studies, the Institute for Applied Sciences, the Center for Public Service, the Chancellor's Office, the Elm Fork Education Center, the Denton Affordable Housing Corporation, Inc., and The Luminary School.